ACCOLADES FOR FORT MASON

AT FORT MASON
CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

"The latest jewel in the Bay Area's cultural crown is the sparkling complex at Fort Mason." With these words, KGO-TV Community Affairs Manager Rose Guilbault began a Channel 7 editorial that urged community support for the At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign.

Aired twenty times in February and March, the editorial is only one of many endorsements and publicity items garnered by Fort Mason Center in response to its effort to bring these Historical Landmark facilities up to the same high quality as the groups that use them.

The success of this regional cultural center is cited by Mexican Museum President Fernando de Necochea, who states, "Attendance has soared because of our location at Fort Mason, and so has public interest in our exhibitions and education programs." Modesto Lanzone, President of the Museo ItaloAmericano, adds, "We chose Fort Mason because the potential . . . to be connected to everything else that's happening here is helpful to our growth."

Their comments have been echoed repeatedly in recent publications. The article titles give a sense of the vitality of activities and services at Fort Mason Center: "A Hub of Cultural Diversity" (Center Arts); "Utopia by the Bay" (San Jose Mercury News); "A Felicitous Mix: The Arts, Edibles, Activism" (The Sunday Herald, Monterey); "Mecca for Arts Lovers" (Accolades).

"This is only the beginning of the beginning," wrote San Francisco Progress art critic Joseph W. Bean in a January article. As the work began to renovate the Center, signs went up on all the buildings, announcing that Fort Mason is a work in progress. "Evidence of both the work and the progress is everywhere around the bustling center," added Bean.

Fort Mason Center is improving itself not only as a home for cultural and educational groups, but also as a conference facility for a broad spectrum of private and public, nonprofit and business groups seeking adaptable, high-quality meeting and events space. The November/December issue of the California Meeting journal poses the question, "Where do Chrysler, Shaklee and the Fall Antiques Show go for space?" And the answer: "They head for Fort Mason Center. . . with 1,000 free parking spaces, a view to beat all, a great restaurant, concerts, galleries, and plays, and hotel space within walking distance, it sounds like Fort Mason could be an alternative to the City's more traditional meeting space for some time to come."

Strong community support for the At-Fort-Mason Capital Campaign recognizes the Center's unique role. A lead article in The San Francisco Examiner pointed out that Fort Mason is an important cultural complement to the Civic Center complex, and one that serves a large and diverse audience: "The convergence of location, funding and organization has made Fort Mason a model facility that is envied and studied all over the world."

And an Examiner editorial called Fort Mason "a major cultural center for residents and visitors in the Bay Area." Referring to the planned renovations, the editorial continued, "The transformation of Fort Mason reflects the very best of San Francisco. . . . The relentless development of the Bay Area is putting pressure on nonprofit groups housed in warehouses and unused factories, making Fort Mason not just attractive but necessary to sustain our cultural organizations. Fort Mason has proved to be vital and exciting. The capital campaign allows it to become a showplace, as well. Cities around the world are scrambling to replicate Fort Mason-type projects in their communities. We already have it. We need to support it."

Allan Temko, San Francisco Chronicle Environmental Design columnist, sums it up: "Fort Mason Center, with its theaters, galleries, environmental groups, Greens restaurant, and above all the vast exhibition spaces on former embarkation piers, is proof of what steady but bold innovation can accomplish."

THE ARTISTRY OF CAROUSELS

For many people, animals possess an almost magical appeal. Combine this with flashing lights and bright colors, the rousing sound of the Wurlitzer band organ, and the intoxication of motion of the carousel, and you have an irresistible combination that thrills and delights, as well as awakening joyous memories of childhood.

The American Carousel Museum is presenting a sale of vintage carved animals in The Herbst Pavilion (Pier 2) at Fort Mason. Guernsey's, a New York auction house that specializes in the unusual, will conduct the sale. Their experience includes the auction of an entire carousel to the town of Fall River, Massachusetts, for a record $693,000.

The Museum features animals from the collection of Larry and Glenda Freels, who started the Freels Foundation for the preservation and public educational presentation of carousel art. Proceeds from the auction will help support the activities of the Museum: traveling exhibits, seminars, restoration workshops, docent tours, archives and research, and educational classroom materials. The Museum provides outreach programs for Bay Area schools and other organizations, and encourages civic and professional groups to visit the Museum during trips to San Francisco. Docent tours include explanations of different carvers and their styles, displays showing how the animals are constructed, demonstrations of the latest techniques in restoration processes, and concerts on the Wurlitzer band organ.

This outstanding Dentzel carousel standing horse was carved in 1911.

This first West Coast all-carousel auction will present more than 150 antique carved animals. One, a military Muller standing horse in old factory paint decorated with canteen, bugle, and bedroll, is from the last carousel produced by the Dentzel factory, in 1927. Other Dentzel figures to be auctioned are a cat in the original paint, a giraffe, and a lion with an angel carved on its side. There will also be pigs, a pair of peacocks, at least two complete carousels, and more than forty figures from an Illions Supreme carousel. Only three Illions Supreme carousels were ever produced. Of local interest will be a few carved animals from early Golden Gate Park and Playland carousels.

The pieces for auction may be viewed from April 20 through 23: Wednesday, 12 noon to 8pm; Thursday, 10am to 8pm; Friday, 10am to 10:30pm; and Saturday, 9 to 11am. The auction begins on Saturday at 12 noon.

Paint restoration demonstrations will be given at 11am and 3pm on Thursday and Friday. Also on Friday: at 6pm, a slide program about the history and restoration of the Playland carousel, presented by Marianne Stevens, carousel collector and historian, and co-author of Painted Ponies; and from 7:30 to 10:30pm, a preview party with refreshments.

Admission is $16 for two, by catalogue purchase. This includes entry to auction events, and also to the Museum. For further information, call the American Carousel Museum, (415) 928-0550, or Guernsey's auction house, (212) 794-2280.

GARDEN TREASURES

The largest indoor horticultural show on the West Coast presents exotic, beautiful and imaginative garden designs in Fort Mason's Pier 3. Sponsored by Friends of Recreation and Parks, the show features 65,000 square feet of professionally designed displays, a marketplace offering the finest of gardening treasures, forty children's miniature gardens, and a special exhibition of drawings by landscape design pioneers Gertrude Jekyll and Beatrix Farrand.

Presentations by experts will cover English flower arrangements, orchids, roses, pruning, pests, and window box displays. A Garden Doctor will answer all your questions about plants. There will be docent tours, information about horticultural activities, and a Garden Cafe.

Proceeds from the event fund special projects of San Francisco's Recreation and Parks Department, including improvements to Golden Gate Park. The Friends of Recreation and Parks also hope to delight and educate the public about garden design and horticulture; to introduce the talent of Bay Area landscape professionals and suppliers; to provide a forum for the exchange of ideas among enthusiasts; and to inspire a greater interest in and concern for public gardens and parks.

The show is open April 13 through 17. Hours: Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, 10am-6pm; Thursday and Friday, 10am-9pm. The Preview Party takes place on Tuesday, April 12 at 6pm; the Final Plant Sale will be Sunday, April 17 from 4 to 6pm. Admission is $7 for adults, $6 for seniors, children 12 and under free if accompanied by adults. Group tickets for ten or more are available at $5 per person. For information, call 221-1310.
